Scouting Great Landscapes

Presented by Glenn Randall

BY TONY PARISO
PROGRAMS@LPS.CC

For all of us who enjoy and love the scenic wonders of Colorado and the west, this month's presentation will be a special event. Glenn moved to Colorado in 1975 to attend college and immerse himself in the mountain environment that inspires his photography. A visit to his website <http://www.glennrandall.com/> will take you to all of the iconic vistas that make us love our state. I'm currently on an extended road trip and as we were passing the "Welcome To Colorful Colorado" sign I remarked to my wife that whoever created the sign must be familiar with Glenn's work. He's produced a number of photo books that highlight our state, my personal favorite is Colorado Wild and Beautiful, and offers a variety of workshops focusing on landscape photography. I know it will be impossible for him to share all of his knowledge in an hour long presentation but you can bet you'll get some great tips on locations to photograph as well as on techniques that will enhance your images of our state.

As always, I encourage you to visit Glenn's website in anticipation of his presentation. Enjoy his images, I'm positive they will generate questions on his techniques and will also inspire plans for your own photographic field experiences.

Finally, I love this quote from Glenn "Sleep is for photographers who don't drink enough coffee."
